Mao Emerges From 6-Month Absence

TOKYO (AP)—Communist Chinese leader Mao Tze-tung emerged today from a six-month absence from public view to meet with an Albanian government delegation led by Premier Mehmet Shehu.

The Communist New China News Agency reported the meeting. Mao's long period in apparent seclusion had resulted in speculation that he was seriously ill.

The meeting with the Albanians, reported also by Peking radio, was the first official word from Red China that Mao had attended a public function since Nov. 26, when he met a Cambodian military delegation in Shanghai.

The report today did not say where or when Mao met with the Albanians, Red China's only European Communist ally in the Peking-Moscow struggle. Shehu's delegation arrived in China late last month for the May Day celebrations in Peking, went on a tour and returned to the capital Sunday.

Mao, now 72, did not attend the annual May Day review in Peking. The Chinese government denied the rumors abroad that he was seriously ill or even dead, and a non-Communist source in New York reported last week that the Chinese leader had been at the airport in Peking Feb. 28 to say goodbye to ex-President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana. The source said Mao appeared to be in good health.

Another Peking leader long out of the public eye also emerged with Mao for the Albanians' visit. He was Defense Minister Lin Biao, vice chairman of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party, for whom a public appearance had not been reported in a year.

The New China News Agency said Lin, along with Premier Chou En-lai were present at the meeting. It added that Mao also gave a banquet for the Albanian visitors.

SAYS RAILROAD MERGER VITAL TO UNION PACIFIC

CHICAGO (AP)—E.H. Bailey, Union Pacific Railroad president, says that merger with the Rock Island Lines is vital to continued successful operation of his railroad.

Bailey told an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing Monday that the Union Pacific must find new ways to improve its service if it is to stop inroads which he said had been made in the carrier's transcontinental traffic.

The ICC hearing is concerned with the Union Pacific's proposal to merge with the financially troubled Rock Island and a counterproposal by the Chicago and North Western Railway to acquire stock control of the 7,800-mile line.

A Union Pacific-Rock Island merger would give the Union Pacific entry to St. Louis and Chicago, gateways to Eastern territory which the UP says it needs to compete for transcontinental traffic.

Small Business Unit Nominee Knows Area

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's nominee to head the Small Business Administration was born in a small town, went to a small college and spent much of his life as a small businessman.

But Bernard L. Boutin's family is anything but small. He and his wife, Alice, have 10 children. "They're a lot of fun," Boutin, 42, said with a laugh as he proudly displayed a large family portrait in his office.

Beside the Boutin family picture is a photograph of the Johnson family, inscribed with personal greetings from the President and Mrs. Johnson.

"I have a very good relationship with the President," Boutin said in an interview. "I intend to operate the SBA with a free hand—but my boss is the President."

Johnson announced the nomination Sunday. Senate confirmation is required.

Chinese 'Antiparty' Wider Than Suspected

Did China Have Dud H-Bomb?

By BOB HORTON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Red China may have come up with a dud in an attempt to detonate a hydrogen bomb, Defense Department sources suggested today. (Additional accounts of test on inside page.)

The announcement by Peking radio of Communist China's third atomic explosion Monday said the test included "thermonuclear materials." But Peking stopped short of calling it a hydrogen bomb.

The mention of "thermonuclear materials," Pentagon sources said, could mean one of two things:—Chinese scientists attached deuterium or tritium, used in a hydrogen weapon to an atomic bomb to analyze the effects of the blast on those elements.

—Or China set out to stage a hydrogen explosion and failed to get the proper energy release. (Continued On Page Seven)

Urges Power Industry Seek Health, Safety
BOSTON (AP)—The chairman of the Federal Power Commission told the power industry today it should heed recent developments in the automobile and drug industries and make prompt improvements in such areas as air and stream pollution.

Lee C. White, in a speech to the American Public Power Association, said the public and its elected representatives have already begun to insist that the industry take steps to:

—Improve the aesthetic aspects of electric power facilities.

—Minimize the air polluting and stream polluting effects of electric power production.

—Develop fully the scenic and recreational potential of hydroelectric projects on the nation's navigable streams.

head of the General Services Administration and, for the past seven months, as deputy director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipov-erty organization.

Many sources agree, however, that Boutin will have his work cut out for him in the SBA, which has been without a director since last fall and has cut back some loan programs.

"We've just been floating along," said one SBA official who did not want to be named. "Everybody's been a little reluctant to do anything."

Boutin said he's "small business oriented. I owned them most of my adult life in New Hampshire and even started my own business from scratch."

"I know what it is to meet a payroll, to try to borrow money and how hard it is to establish lines of credit," he said.

Astronauts Rehearse In Gemini 9

By JIM STROTHMAN
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—America's next pair of astronauts climbed into their Gemini 9 spaceship today and rehearsed the complex dual countdown that will send them rocketing aloft next Tuesday to test skills needed to land on the moon. (Further account of flight plans on inside page.)

Today's countdown—called a simultaneous launch demonstration—is the start of two days of intensive rehearsals designed to test equipment and brief technicians in the blockhouse on procedures necessary to launch Gemini and its Agena target satellite one hour, 29 minutes apart.

Wednesday Gemini 9 will go through a simulated flight—where it is counted down for three practice liftoffs. Equipment in the spacecraft and on the ground which will be used during early phases of the actual flight will be checked out.

Preparations continued for a noon (EST) liftoff Wednesday for a scientific satellite called Atmospheric Explorer.

The spacecraft, a shiny ball weighing 495 pounds, is scheduled to ride a Delta rocket into an egg-shaped orbit ranging from 170 to 750 miles above the earth to study the chemistry of the upper atmosphere.

Auto Workers Support Car Safety Rules

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union came out today in support of federal auto safety standards.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther added, however, that any legislation should include "sufficient latitude for creative and imaginative product design."

Reuther's remarks were contained in material prepared for his appearance before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee in Washington.

Reuther said previous testimony in the safety hearings had demonstrated "it is possible to make the car safer from the point of view of design and construction and that it is possible to do this with a minimum of delay."

Reuther expressed belief safer cars could be produced at virtually no increase in price, or at most, a minimal increase.

The UAW proposed an eight-point safety program, including a reference to the defect reports which the auto companies made to a Senate subcommittee committee last week.

Suggests Changes In Illinois Schools

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Task Force on Education has suggested a revamping of the organization and financing of public schools in the state.

The 56-member group proposed Monday:—Creation of a state board of education to take over the duties of the state superintendent of public instruction. The nine-member board would appoint its own superintendent.

—Establishment of a state income tax and reorganization of the property tax system to almost double the state's financial support of the public schools.

—Reorganization of the state's 1,300 school districts into 200 districts, with regional school boards to coordinate educational programs. The regional boards would replace county school superintendents.

"The real question," said William McLure, task force chairman, "is whether we will be able to break with tradition and establish a system to meet our present day needs."

McLure, director of the Educational Research Bureau of the University of Illinois, said the state lost "nearly $2 million in federal aid for regional vocational programs" last year because there was no means of coordinating the programs.

Under the task force's proposals, the nine-member state board of education would be appointed by Gov. Otto Kerner with the approval of the state Senate.

Not more than five members could be appointed from one political group. They would serve six-year terms and would be paid for expenses.

A state school survey committee would be set up to supervise the redistricting of school districts into some 200 reasonably similar units. The redistricting would be subject to approval by the voters of a region in a referendum.

The new method of subsidizing the public schools would raise the minimum spent per pupil from the present $330 annually to $600. The formula would mean an increase in state aid from last year's $244 million to an estimated $461 million per annum.

The task force was appointed by Kerner in April 1965 to make recommendations to the state General Assembly for the improvement of the state's elementary and secondary education.

Fear Cold Hurt Fruit Crops
CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—Agricultural advisers said today the state's crops generally survived overnight temperatures in the 20s, but expressed concern for some fruit crops.

In Southern Illinois, where temperatures were the coldest on record for the date, officials said peaches and apples in frost-prone ravines may have been affected by 32-degree cold.

The farm adviser in Jersey County, where temperatures fell to 28, said most apples and peaches had reached a growth stage which should have permitted them to survive in orchards on high ground.

In the strawberry belt from Union County to Effingham, growers said frost may have caused considerable damage to what was expected to have been a bumper crop.

Some growers in the Centralia area estimated up to 75 per cent of the berry harvest was lost.

Robert Long, Montgomery County farm adviser, said wheat, corn and the legumes—especially alfalfa and clover—evidently survived the cold.

STUDENTS GRADES RELEASED ONLY ON THEIR CONSENT

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Undergraduates at the University of Illinois will be the sole judge as to what information on their academic status should be released to local draft boards.

"This is in accordance with the university's long-standing policy of releasing information about academic status at the student's request," Lyle H. Lanier, executive vice president and provost, said Monday.

Illinois Selective Service headquarters has provided the university with new forms which include provisions for reporting whether a student is satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction and his rank in class.

When Leforte and his men finish their work, only smoke and granulated ash are left. The ashes are sifted to make certain no particles of bills remain. Fine mesh screen covers the chimney top to prevent any burning bills or ashes from flying out.

Worn-out bills are removed from circulation by the Federal Reserve banks around the country. The Treasury estimates the average life of $1 bills at 18 months, with the life span varying for bills of larger denominations to almost nine years for $50 bills.

The reserve banks cut the tattered bills in half horizontally and perforate them with a special stamp before they are sent to Washington. A careful audit is made before they are sent to Leforte and his men.

Top Soviet Leaders Go Abroad

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union's two top leaders left today for visits abroad, apparently designed to bolster the Kremlin's influence in both the Communist and neutralist camps.

Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev flew to Romania for a three-day visit. Its Communist regime has been showing increasing independence of Moscow's leadership.

Brezhnev's visit could be aimed at keeping Romania neutral in Moscow's dispute with Peking.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin flew to Cairo for an eight-day visit that appeared aimed at drawing the United Arab Republic's President Gamal Abdel Nasser closer to the Soviet sphere.

5 Killed, Many Hurt By Gunfire

Busy Streets Blood-Drenched

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists exploded a mine in the heart of Saigon today, and U.S. sentries turned one of the capital's busy streets into a blood-drenched battleground.

Five persons were killed and 29 to 32 were wounded, most of them by American fire. The dead included a Vietnamese policeman, three Vietnamese women and a child. Eight Americans and at least 21 Vietnamese civilians were reported wounded.

A U.S. Army spokesman said there was no evidence of Viet Cong fire in the half-hour fusillade that followed the mine explosion. He told a news conference that an American MP opened fire and that other MPs thought they were being fired on and began spraying the streets with machine guns and automatic weapons. Crowds of Vietnamese on their way to work ran in terror or fell under the hail of bullets.

THREE ILLINOIS SERVICEMEN KILLED

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department Monday named three Illinois servicemen who were killed recently in the Viet Nam War.

They are: Army S. Sgt. Reese Devoreaux, husband of Mrs. Edith Devoreaux of 6237 S. Drexel, Chicago.

Army Spec. 4 James K. Kovar, husband of Mrs. Nancy Kovar of 1463 Main St., Galesburg.

Marine gunnery Sgt. Joseph B. Russ, husband of Mrs. Norma J. Russ of 222 Illinois St., Joliet.

Seven Vietnamese suspected of planting the bomb were arrested, but all were cleared and released, the spokesman said.

"Our hearts go out to the innocent victims of this affair," the U.S. Embassy said in a statement.

"The root cause of it is, of course, the Viet Cong. The mission is deeply sympathetic to the innocent victims of this event and is prepared to help in every way we can those who found themselves in the way of the fire this morning."

An embassy spokesman said the families of victims would be paid compensation in accordance with normal procedure in such cases.

The military spokesman said it had not been determined yet how many of the casualties were. (Continued On Page Seven)

A Giveaway Bill

Numerous inventions result from the research and development financed by the federal government, which spends about 15 billion dollars annually in this area. It is hard to find any sound argument for giving private companies exclusive rights to exploit these discoveries made possible by tax funds. Yet that is what would be done by a measure which the Senate patents subcommittee has approved.

Such a giveaway is not unprecedented. The Department of Defense, which administers about half of the total spent on research and development, generally hands over inventions for the exclusive use of private interests. But a number of other federal agencies that spend money on research—the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Atomic Energy Commission, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Agriculture Department—keep discoveries in the public domain so that anyone can make use of them without charge.

The latter practice should be established as public policy to which all federal agencies, including the Defense Department, would have to conform. Moving in the opposite direction toward private monopoly of inventions made under the umbrella of federal subsidy cannot be justified. This giveaway bill is expected to get through the Judiciary Committee with little trouble, but it ought to be stopped on the floor of the Senate.

Silence Isn't Golden

A Washington columnist reports that bitterness occasioned by the Vietnam controversy has caused Senator Fulbright to stop speaking to Defense Secretary McNamara. If true, this is quite disturbing. At a time when the nation is divided on Asian policy, the maturity to continue civil communication is even more important than in less difficult periods.

Through the years, little of value has resulted from one person's refusal to speak to another. About the best thing to be said for this state of affairs is the rather negative comment that silence is better than name calling. In the area of national government, and particularly when so serious a matter as conduct of a war is involved, this is not enough. It is imperative that all routes to discussion and understanding be kept open.

If Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones down the block do not speak, it is unimportant; they are not helping to run the nation. Senator Fulbright and Secretary McNamara are. Let us hope each of them will remember that men of sincere good will and intent are found on both sides of the controversy. The problems to be solved are complex. The utmost in emotional maturity as well as knowledge and judgment will be required to solve them.

Dear Ann:

Wants to Repay Expense of Sickness

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am 12 years old and I got out of the hospital a few weeks ago. I have been sick quite a lot but I have kept up with my studies and my grades are good.

Lately mom has been talking a lot about how much my sickness has cost. She says she can't buy any new clothes for a long time, or go to the beauty shop. She says we'll have to forget about a new car, too.

Yesterday some boys from school called to see if I wanted to go to a movie. When I asked mom for the money she got real mad and said I had a lot of nerve to be asking for extras after they had spent so much money on my sickness.

Dad came in and said mom was wrong. He gave me the money to go to the movie but I didn't enjoy it much.

I love my mother and I want to be a good son. I'm sorry I have been sick so much and that it is so expensive but I couldn't help it.

I can't get a job because I am too young but I have a couple of friends who have promised to let me know if a paper route opens up. I want to make some money so I can give it to mom to help make up for the things she has been doing without on account of my sickness.

Mom is really a wonderful person and I wish you would tell me how I can make her proud of me. I want her to know how much I love her.

Please help me. —DANNY
Dear Danny: You sound like a wonderful son. I wish you were mine.

I have no advice for you, Danny. You don't need any. I just hope that you will always be as generous and kind and free of bitterness as you are today.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widower in my 70th year. I'm far from old, however, and I have more pep than some of my friends who are 20 years younger. I would like to take my granddaughter on a trip to Europe this summer. She is 18 years old and will have completed her freshman year at college.

My finances are limited and we could make the trip only if we used double room accommodations. Do you think it is proper for a grandfather to share a room with his 18-year-old granddaughter under these conditions? —M. V.

Dear M. V.: Sorry, Gramps, no. I suggest that you both save your money and make the trip in 1967 when you can afford separate rooms.

Dear Ann Landers: I am going with a very fine young man who has a habit that drives me out of my mind.

Whenever we sit down to eat my fiancé reaches for the salt and pepper and sprinkles his food for five minutes. I've asked him how he knows the food needs seasoning without tasting it. He says, "Oh it's never spicy enough to suit me."

I plan to marry this man — he day and I'd like you to tell me if I should speak up now or wait until we are man and wife. —ANN NOID

Dear Noid: Be quiet and learn to live with it. Consider yourself fortunate if the guy reaches no further than the salt and pepper shakers for the spice of life.

"Stop, Look and Listen!"

Washington VC Draftees Are Defecting To Remain Close to Home

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA)—Sometimes relocating a South Vietnamese hamlet pays off.

In one month recently, in rural Quang Duc Province on the Cambodian border, six Viet Cong guerrillas walked in and gave themselves up.

Now that isn't very many guerrillas in the over-all war. But it amazed men in Quang Duc because, before that, only one VC had come in every two or three months.

What interested the officials in this border province was the reason these Viet Cong gave for quitting the fight.

Before, they said, they'd been operating as guerrillas in the hills close to their families. They could come in secretly now and then, have a meal and see their families and friends—spend the night.

Now that their hamlets were being moved, they couldn't do this any more without too great a risk.

The new hamlets were close in to government troops. They were further away from where their VC units were operating. Therefore, they had to dodge more government patrols to get home.

These VC had talked to their families, they said, and their families had persuaded them to come in and give themselves up. (The families had said, too, that the new farmland looked good.)

Several provinces south of Saigon likewise have reported a step-up in VC defections.

These former VC reported that in previous years the Viet Cong recruits had been sent to units in their home neighborhoods. They weren't sent out of the province. They could often go home at night.

But, these young men said, the new VC recruiting that they had been caught in was of a different type. They had been ordered to move into units in central Viet Nam, a long way from their homes. They were not about to go off so far from their families. So they deserted.

Some of the men captured from the North Vietnamese southern expeditionary army have complained strongly about having been taken too far from their families. Some with families in the south have deserted because of their loneliness.

In past years, Viet Cong recruiters have had one edge on the government's agents. These VC could argue that if the government's army took the youth, he'd be carted away from his family to fight and die away from home.

The VC, by contrast, promised the young man he could fight as a guerrilla in his own district, get home regularly to see his family.

But this is now changing in parts of South Viet Nam. This love of home and family offers an effective way to step up the number of Viet Cong deserters.

Mature Parent Belly-Crawling Men

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: It is because I have such respect for your thinking that I am so disturbed by your column on the mother-bound man—your euphemism for the homosexual.

To damn him as you have done is to condemn him as hopelessly untreatable, to a lifetime of bleak, promiscuous homosexuality. It is vital that homosexuals should be assured that psychiatry regards them as treatable.

ANSWER: I wasn't writing about homosexuals manly enough to subject themselves to psychiatric treatment. Like you, I think they are fine.

I was writing about passive, mother-bound men who believe they're wonderful. Because married to one, a girl can become a Medusa. When her husband walks out on arguments he should win, dithers over decisions, says "Ask your mother" to his children, brags of his business victories and laps up flattery, his woman feels contempt for him.

So she starts stomping on him in the desperate hope that he'll tell her where to get off. When he doesn't, when instead he says, "All right, all right, for God's sake, have it your way," then the primordial fury can take her over. In vengeance for his refusal of a manhood to her, she starts smashing up his children as crazy Medea in the Greek play did out of hate of that disgusting, sneaking, woman-scared, woman-raised Jason of hers.

As I wrote, I think she ought to get up and get out. But that's not so easy to do with everyone yacking at her about the afflictions she's in for if she gives her children a "broken home."

So the poor frantic creature keeps her home together and breaks up her children instead. In the game of chess, the woman, the queen, is pure hate. Once loose on the board, she hurls around like a mad thing, killing every piece that gets in her way. You hate her. Even when she wins for you your opponent's pieces, you loathe her.

Then, suddenly you become aware of the almost total passivity of her man, her idiot king. He just sits there on his square, too unmanly to so much as move two squares to put an end to her rampaging. He just sits there, thinking, "All right, all right, let her wear the pants." And you find yourself loathing him even more than you loathe her.

I'm a woman who is tired of what's done to women and children by men who say, "All right, have it your way." It's not for nothing that the children of the furious woman and passive man in class are called "pawns." It's what they are.

Every man has a right to his opinion, but no man has a right to be wrong in his facts. Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to U.S. presidents.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—So far in 1966 the two biggest arguments are over the war in Viet Nam and the danger of inflation. They are not unrelated.

The more the government spends on war, the more profits, prices and wages are affected. Without the war, inflation might seem more remote.

President Johnson, trying to play cautious on how far to go with the war and how far to go to prevent inflation, is making people sore in both cases.

Instead of asking for a tax boost as a major anti-inflation move, he has asked labor and business to take it easy.

Easy means keeping down prices and big wage demands. These are his guidelines, voluntary action, requested of both sides.

But there are arguments on all sides: There should be direct government controls on prices and wages; there should be a tax increase without other controls; neither controls nor taxes are needed.

A few things that happened last week show the divided thinking, if not confusion.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, asked whether it wasn't time for business to pant a little less about profits.

He asked: "Does anyone imagine that labor will continue to show moderation in its wage demands when prices and profit margins are continually rising?"

But—many recent wage settlements have substantially exceeded the guideline suggested for labor, that wage increases should be limited to 3.2 percent a year. Labor spokesmen are not satisfied with the guideline idea.

One complaint they make: The guideline puts a suggested lid on workers while leaving the gate open for business profits, stock dividends and corporation executives' salaries.

Businessmen complain Johnson's guideline for them is federal interference in free enterprise. Some have expressed fear the temporary restraint might become permanent.

Right behind Ackley came William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board which is not under Johnson's thumb like the Council of Economic Advisers.

Martin didn't plead for restraint. He said a tax increase on corporations and individuals is needed now as an anti-inflationary weapon.

Then right behind came the secretary of the treasury, Henry H. Fowler, a member of Johnson's Cabinet. He raised a blinker light against Martin's call for a tax increase now.

His argument: The economic trends are still so unclear that a tax increase might be an "over-cure," at least now.

For weeks the Johnson administration has been hemming and hawing about the need for a tax boost, putting off any thought of action on it until inflation seems more ominously close, if it gets closer.

Since this is a congressional election year Johnson doesn't have to have a political psychologist tell him that a tax increase is not likely to make voters happy.

But Johnson has a seldom-used 21-man Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy. He told it "disquieting signs are beginning to appear."

He called it for advice, saying: "I want you to ask yourselves: If you were president, what would you do?"

Although celery was known to the ancient Greeks and Romans, it was used only as a flavoring for food and for medicinal purposes until the 17th century. Its use as food was first recorded in France in 1623, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Some Descendants of Adam Have Extra Ribs Attached

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Whether or not Adam had one less rib than Eve is a moot question. There is, however, no doubt that some of his numerous descendants have an extra rib attached to one of the vertebrae of the neck. Such ribs are small but often large enough to cause symptoms because they press on nerves and blood vessels in the region.

These cervical ribs are usually seen only on one side and are found more often in women than in men. They do not, as a rule, start to cause trouble until after the possessor has come of age. The victim complains that her arm on the affected side feels weak, heavy or numb and that she has a pain in the neck which is aggravated by movements of her head and grows worse toward the end of the day.

Some persons with this developmental abnormality are thought to have arthritis or a slipped disk in the neck until an X ray reveals the true cause of the trouble. If the symptoms are mild, heat and pain-relieving drugs may be used but, if the symptoms are severe, the cervical rib must be removed.

Q—I am a 43-year-old housewife. My feet and ankles swell for four or five days, during which time I gain about six pounds. Then I take water pills and am normal for about 10 days. Then the cycle starts all over again. I have been to two doctors but neither can find any cause for the swelling. What do you think?

A—There are so many causes of edema (waterlogging) that it is often hard to find the cause in a given instance. If the more obvious causes, such as heart and kidney disease, have been ruled out, you should go through one of the large medical clinics attached to a teaching hospital.

Q—When a person takes Mercurhydrin for fluid accumulation in the body, must this treatment be continued indefinitely? Can a weak heart cause loss of appetite and vomiting?

A—Some forms of edema can be successfully treated but, if the underlying cause cannot be removed, the treatment must be continued for life. If you have congestive heart failure, which would account for your edema, it could indeed spoil your appetite. The stomach is such a sensitive organ that almost any severe illness may be associated with vomiting.

Q—My doctor has prescribed Librium as a tranquilizer. I have an enlarged prostate. Would this drug have any effect on my prostate?

A—No.

A Well-Seasoned, Welcome Treat

Steak Rolls, Pan Fried Tomatoes make a tempting treat.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Cube steaks, well-seasoned, stuffed and rolled, make a welcome dinner dish. Particularly when pan-fried tomato halves are served with them. And whipped potatoes? What else!

Steak Rolls

(Serves 6)

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon onion salt
6 cube steaks (about 1 1/2 lbs.)
3 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons instant minced onion

1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard

1/2 teaspoon leaf oregano

3/4 cup milk

2 cups frozen bread crumbs

3 tablespoons shortening

1 cup water

1 envelope (3/4 oz.) brown gravy mix

3 tablespoons sherry

Combine flour and onion salt; sprinkle on both sides of cube steaks. In a mixing bowl, combine the water and onion; let stand a few minutes. Add the yellow mustard, oregano, milk and bread crumbs; toss to mix.

Spread a portion of filling on each steak, then roll up, jelly roll fashion. Secure with wooden pick or tie with string. In hot shortening, in skillet, brown steak rolls on all sides. Add water; cover; reduce heat and simmer for 30 to 40 minutes.

Remove from heat. Arrange steak rolls on platter. Add 1/2 cup cold water and the gravy mix to liquid in pan. Blend well; place over heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add sherry; heat a minute longer and serve.

Pan-Fried Tomatoes

6 medium tomatoes

Prepared yellow mustard

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Wash tomatoes; cut out stem ends, then halve crosswise.

Spread out surface with mustard. Melt butter in skillet.

Place tomato halves, cut side down, in butter. Cook over moderate heat long enough for tomatoes to heat through, but still keep their shape (about 6 to 8 minutes). Serve cut side up. Sprinkle surface with parsley.

Indeed, he, Rudi Gernreich, covered the models at his press and buyers opening Thursday from their noses to their toes in helmets, dresses with turtle necks and long trumpet sleeves, bulky knit stockings and slick plastic shoes in matching hues.

Since most of the fabrics were bias-cut knits which undulated with the feminine figure accurately, you didn't need a program to tell the girls from the boys.

Then the gamine-like girls came out with newsboy caps cocked to the side of their severe hair bobs, checkered knickers as short as bloomers, high-necked ribbed poor boy sweaters and woolen stockings to match.

Pop art was the way the California designer described those bulky knit stockings that sometimes reversed patterns at mid-knee.

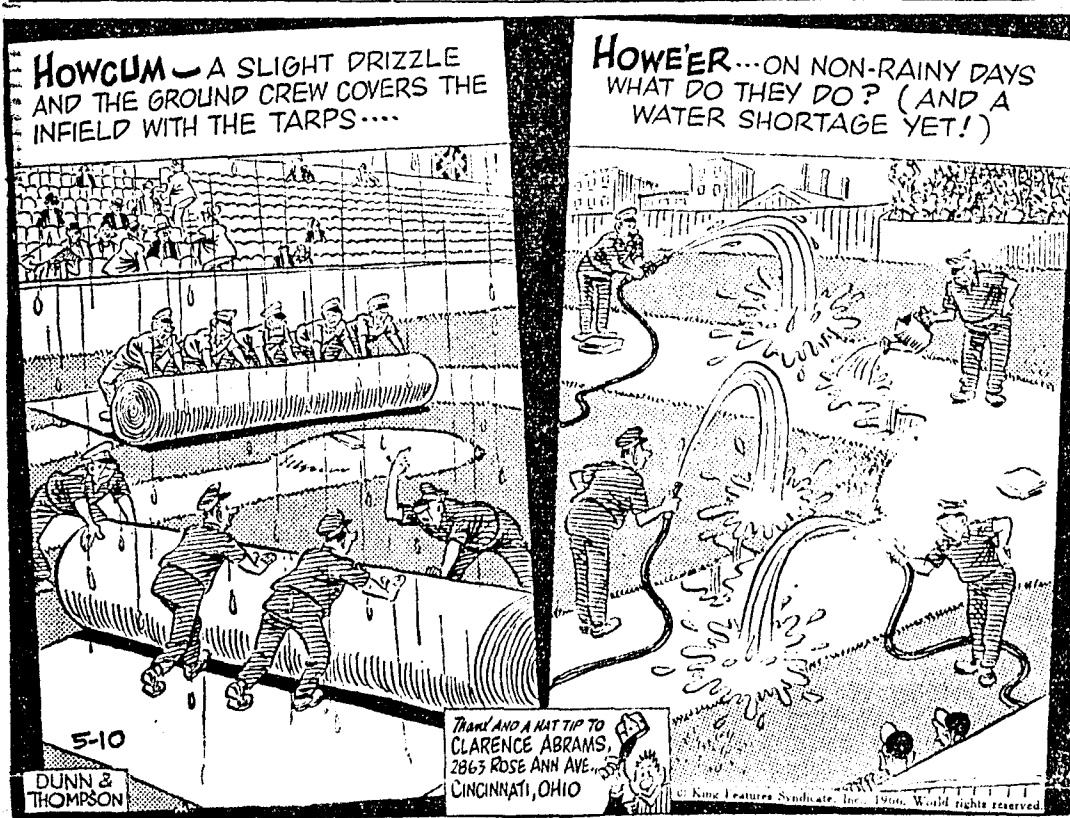

Vivid double stripes snaked around one salmon stockinged leg, matching the diagonal climb of such a stripe on a salmon colored shift. Or broad Roman stripes under sleeve arms and down the sides of a shapeless kelly green dress continued down each green wool clad leg.

Sleeves of some garments belled at the wrists the way the knit trousers worn with them belled at the ankles.

LOCAL IBSSS STUDENT HONORED—Michael Lewis, (center) of Jacksonville was awarded first place at the Mason Music Festival Monday at the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School from Governor Otto Kerner. Kerner, Mason Team Wows IBSSS Pupils At Music Festival
That old one-two punch of Kerner and Mason wowed 'em again at the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School Monday afternoon.

The occasion was the annual Lowell B. Mason Music Festival, in which a Jacksonville boy won first place. Former State Senator Lowell B. Mason originated the idea of a music festival several years ago, and since, Governors Horner, Green, Stevenson, Stratton and Kerner have all attended.

Mason, now a practicing attorney in Washington, D.C., was the youngest state senator in the state when he was first elected while residing in Oak Park.

The music festival, which includes a little frivolity all the children expect from Sen. Mason, is designed to honor those students who have shown the most improvement during the year.

The governor's arrival is always heralded with great excitement and enthusiasm by the students, and although the pattern is generally the same year after year, it never seems to dull the luster of the festival.

Kerner usually arrives about 11:45 a.m., is greeted by two young students, and then makes a brief tour of the institution before lunch.

Flies To Chicago
This year, the program was speeded-up because of the governor's speech-making date in Chicago. He left Jacksonville about two o'clock by airplane for the Windy City, and although he was sure to hand-out the awards, he missed the individual performances.

This year, Kerner's usual custom of providing a ride in the state limousine for three or four youngsters was punctuated with an extra treat.

The governor handed his driver two dollars and instructed the state trooper to be sure to "fill up on ice cream."

LOCAL IBSSS STUDENT HONORED—Michael Lewis, (center) of Jacksonville was awarded first place at the Mason Music Festival Monday at the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School from Governor Otto Kerner. Also seen in the picture is girls second place winner Dianne Atkinson of Blue Island and former State Senator Lowell B. Mason (between Lewis and Kerner).

Those students receiving awards among the girls were Carmen Sepeda of Joliet, first; Dianne Atkinson of Blue Island, second; honorable mentions went to Patsy Davison, Ruth Shuman, Charlotte Vincent, Charlene Scanavino.

Among the honored guests Monday was Rodney Mason, brother of Senator Mason.

The Face Is Familiar
BEARDSTOWN — "If that guy over there wasn't in uniform, I'd swear he was my dad."

So spoke 19-year-old P.F.C. Timothy Caldwell as he and two of his buddies stood in the battalion orderly room in Kitzingen, Germany a few months ago.

It turned out "the guy" really was the soldier's dad. "Dad" is U. B. (Babe) Caldwell, former B.H.S. star athlete and now a druggist at Pella, Iowa.

Caldwell, a World War Two veteran and an Air Force reserve officer for 23 years, hitched rides all the way from Omaha, Neb., to his son's base and surprised the boy.

The former Beardstownian, who retired as a major, was looking through his retirement papers and found that he was entitled to a free ride in military aircraft on a space-available basis.

He bought a second hand uniform and "hitched" rides both ways. At the time he was spotted by his son he was in the orderly room to make inquiries as to how to locate the boy.

p.m. and reservations must be made by those who plan to attend.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be a 1 p.m. luncheon at the Slagle Ranch Inn. The program will be presented at the home of Mrs. Paul Lehman.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer LONDON (AP) — Every night at 9, a Rolls-Royce draws up in front of the Colony Club on Berkeley Square and outsteps a legendary figure, George Raft. He is wearing his working clothes: dapper suit, striped tie, graying hairpiece. Raft is going to work not as an actor, which is how he earned his fame in 25 years of Hollywood movies. Nor is he working as a dancer, which is how he began his career in show business. George Raft is back in the gambling business, which has provided livelihood — and occasional disaster — at times throughout his adult life.

The Colony Club is one of the many posh places thriving on the tourist trade and the swinging Britons of the new, illuminated — turned-on — isles. There is talk here that London has outstripped Las Vegas as the gambling capital of the world, at least in the quality of the high rollers. Games of $100,000 are nightly occurrences, it is reported.

Raft listens to the rattle of the dice, the whirring of the roulette ball with the casual assurance of a bobby hearing the sounds of traffic. He is back in his element, and in it he looks good.

"What am I doing here?" he said. "Well, I just walk around, talk to people, keep them happy. Maybe console them if they have dropped a few on the tables. It makes them feel better."

"They usually ask me about flipping that half-dollar. I tell them it was really a nickel, which is what it was. But then everything has been inflated."

The coin was flipped by Raft in "Scarface," the 1931 film that lifted him out of the ranks of night club dancers. He became the epitome of the tough guy in gangster movies of the 1930s, and survived the '40s, often as a nice guy.

But movie styles change. With the decline of his movie fortunes came a reverse in his personal luck.

"The last time I gambled," said Raft, gazing over the Colony Club's green-felt jungle, "was at the opening of the Flamingo in Las Vegas. That was 1945 or '46, I think. Jimmy Durante opened the bill."

"Well, I dropped $65,000 that night."

Raft at 70 looks remarkably good and can still dance a lively step, as he demonstrated on BBC recently.

"I'm still an American," he says, "but hell, I have to go where the work is."

ful of a shift to hearts by East and decided to try to keep East out of the lead if possible. Therefore, he played the ace of clubs from dummy at trick two. This produced a delightful result. East dropped the king. Now South had nine sure tricks but he decided that he might as well try for ten if he could do so in safety.

He ran off all the clubs and discarded his three of spades on the last club. Then he played a diamond to his king and returned a diamond toward dummy.

Unfortunately for the defenders West was one of those players who never play a high card when they don't have to. He had held his queen of diamonds and had to play it at this time. South let this queen hold and West was end played.

West had to lead either a heart or spade to give South an extra trick at his three no-trump contract.

CAPONE'S SON CHANGES NAME

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Albert Francis Capone Jr., son of gangster Al Capone of prohibition days, changed his name Monday to Albert Francis.

In a Circuit Court petition, Capone complained that all of his acts were blown up out of proportion in the press because of the infamous reputation of his father.

Circuit Court Judge Mel Clayton, in granting the petition, said the court "acknowledges the admonition of the Bible that the sins of the fathers are often visited upon the sons."

Capone, 48, was convicted in Miami last year of petty larceny and arrested in Broward County this year on a traffic violation.

Capone said the incidents were played up in the press because of his name. He lives in Hollywood and is employed by a tire company in Miami.

WINS BY A HEAD

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A State Senate candidate, Robert Haner of Albuquerque, has won his nomination by a head.

Haner and Mrs. Irene Mathias tied with 988 votes each in last Tuesday's Democratic primary election for the District 39 Senate nomination. They waived their right to a recount in favor of deciding the tie vote by a coin toss.

The coin was flipped Monday by Dist. Court Judge John McManus and it came up heads, giving the nomination to Haner.

Once upon a time a good duplicate player fell in with some good rubber bridge players. On the first hand he managed to make an overtrick and was properly complimented by his opponents. In fact, they complimented him so beautifully that in the next few days he lost several rubbers trying for more overtricks.

He should have remembered to try for overtricks in rubber bridge only when the contract is safe.

Bikinis Can Now Be Ordered In Hair Shades

NEW YORK (AP)—The new way to order a bikini is in shades of blonde, redhead and brunette and, of course, sizes small, medium, and largest. For the teeny-weeny hairy bikini is the latest sun funny fortor summer, traditionally the silliest of fashion seasons. Designers Jean Thornton and Reineke Foster, who call themselves Kuko, Inc., introduced the bikinis Monday as a part of their new collection. The strands of silken hair wrap around the bosom and the lower body like a generous coiffure of a south sea island native girl. Although the hair looks real enough, it is the dyed fiber grown in textile laboratories for artificial wigs. Customers are encouraged to buy bikinis to match their own coiffures. Lest men be jealous, the girls also have created he and she suits in hairy monstrap one-piece styles. Or men can buy trunks to match their chest. In contrast to the bare beach fashions were the kukulottes, gaudy undershorts just an inch shorter than the new short skirts. "Skirts are going to be much shorter than they are even now," said Miss Thornton, "at least seven inches above the knees, as they are in England." Ruffled or beribboned, and in zany prints, bold stripes and eye-shattering colors, the modest pants are to enable chic and proper but stylish misses to get out of autos, ride bicycles, plump into the depths of a downy sofa, or cross legs in an office conference, Miss Thornton said. They are unmentionables meant to be mentioned.

Polly's Pointers Problems Also Win Dollars

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I do not expect a Polly Dollar as I am not sending a Pointer but I believe anyone who can give the ladies with knit suits any information about shortening them at either the waist or the hem line should surely win one. —EDNA
Edna and others — Surprise! Now that we are featuring a problem in each column its sender is going to receive a Polly Dollar. —POLLY
DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for ripping out a machine-stitched hem or seam without puckering the material. Snip one side of the seam every half-inch with the point of the scissors and then you can pull the thread on the other side without puckering the fabric. —MRS. C. W. M.
DEAR POLLY—Recently I had the privilege of taking care of my great granddaughter in my own home. She is only 4 months old and, in packing her bag, my granddaughter forgot to put in an extra pair of plastic pants. I first wonder what to do but my 71 years of experience soon came to the front and I went to the kitchen for a plastic food bag. I cut the two bottom corners off for her legs to go through, folded the top in halfway and put the bag on her. It worked just fine as an emergency measure. The bag should fit snugly around the waist so it will not slip down. —MRS. O. A. C.
DEAR POLLY—My husband buys good belts and when one gets a little worn he buys another. I take his discarded belts, cut them down to my boys' sizes, punch a few holes and they have good-looking belts. —MRS. R. C.
DEAR POLLY—When I buy a greeting card (get well or birthday) and I find one that is particularly appealing I always buy an extra to keep on hand. Sometimes I see one that seems just right for someone whose birthday may be months away but I buy it as I know from experience I may not find one that seems just right when the time comes. —CHARLOTTE
Anyone submitting a Polly's Problem, a solution to a problem or a favorite homemaker idea will receive a dollar if Polly uses the item in Polly's Pointers.

Star Compares Style Of Two Top Directors

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Tippi Hedren, who is as cool and lovely as a vanilla ice cream cone, has served only two masters in a brief, spectacular film career. Alfred Hitchcock, after seeing her in a television commercial, picked the exciting young blonde to star in two of his thrillers. Then Charlie Chaplin chose her. It rarely falls to the lot of a screen newcomer to work consecutively for two such top directors. The experience certainly thrilled Miss Hedren, and left her a bit worried about whom she will work for next. "It is hard to compare Hitchcock and Charlie," she said over a cup of coffee. "Both are taskmasters and demand perfection. But they arrive at it from different directions. Hitch directs through conversation and vocabulary. He tells you clearly what he wants. But Charlie? Well, it's like watching all his old movies. He directs by showing you. He takes the part of each character in turn and acts it out himself." Tippi, who started as a model at the age of 13 in a Minneapolis department store, isn't sure just what she'll do next. "I didn't want to wait myself out of this business," she said frankly, "but working for Hitch and Charlie has been very special to me, and now I'm going to wait for something special to come along." Behind Tippi's petal-pretty face dwells a firm and methodical mind, inherited from Swedish ancestors. "I don't let myself be afraid of anybody," she remarked. "And I don't let myself have unknown fears. If you let yourself be afraid of the unknown in this business, you'd go under very fast." Here are her likes: "Sunshine, my daughter, Saturday and Sunday, swimming pools, simple living—as long as I can live simply in Rome, Paris, London, Cairo

Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Many insurance companies are gliding for the July 1 advent of medicare. It can affect their business in three ways:

First, health and hospitalization policies now in effect for at least 10 million Americans over 65 will lose much of their appeal and are now in process of being updated. Involved is a total of a billion dollars a year in premiums.

Second, new supplementary policies to cover costs that medicare doesn't are being offered by a number of insurance companies both to the elderly now covered privately and those who aren't but whose interest is aroused by the advent of medicare.

Third, at least 16 insurance companies and 32 Blue Shield plans will become contractors to the government in the operation of medicare. They will determine reasonable doctor charges and pay these fees under the rules laid out by the Social Security Administration under the second part of medicare — Plan B.

Plan A covers hospitalization. Plan B — to which the elderly must contribute $3 a month — reimburses them for many medical expenses, not included in Plan A.

After the insurance companies pay the doctors, hospitals, and others, they will collect from the Social Security Administration.

In addition, the 76 Blue Cross — Blue Shield operations in the nation, with 5.7 million subscribers, will offer some medicare supplements, both in and out of the hospitals.

Although most insurance companies with existing hospital and health policies are preparing new plans after medicare starts, some will push them hard while others will not. The latter will let present subscribers take the modified policies but won't go after new business.

Pushing for new sales to supplement medicare which covers most but not all medical expenses, will be such companies as Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, Aetna Life & Casualty, Continental Casualty. The more passive approach will be taken by Bankers Life & Casualty, Metropolitan Life Insurance, and Mutual of Omaha. Some others are expected to get out of the field altogether as likely to be unprofitable after the government steps in.

development at Duncan Park. Attorney Flynn said the zoning of the property was the first step and that the developers would next have to submit a plan to the plan commission for further approval.

Funds were transferred from five accounts into the general fund in the amount of $29,100 for payment of bills and payroll for the month of May.

Four aldermen were absent from their seats Monday night: Scott, Fernandes, Lahey and DeFries, plus the vacancy in the fourth ward created by the resignation of Bill Yording.

Alderman Bill Yording said the Joycees had installed 942 street signs to date and that the northeast section of the city would be the final part. Yording said the Joycees would complete the job within the next two weeks or so.

Yording also said Allied Advertising Co., holder of a contract to supply trash barrels in the city, will offer the advertising space for sale soon. Yording said the company has had difficulty getting metal with which to construct the trash containers and further difficulty selling advertising space on the barrels. A demonstrator was sent to Jacksonville several weeks ago but removed from the street when filled because it was locked and the company failed to supply a key.

Seek Repairs Of Russ Ship In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Russian ship captain, seeking to make engine repairs in San Francisco Bay, agreed Monday night to a Coast Guard inspection to verify his claim that an emergency exists.

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs. Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet fleet that has been fishing in international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore and worse in prospect, the Coast Guard said.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saleh, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

The CAF said the March issue of Navy, the Navy League publication, declared that homing devices of Russian maneuvering are being discovered on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

Such devices, the article said, would permit extremely accurate firing of ballistic missiles by submarine or ships.

sulted from the mine explosion and how many were victims of the American fire.

Earlier reports said several passing Vietnamese were knocked off their bicycles by the blast and apparently injured. The others appeared to have been hit by the massive barrage of machine-gun and automatic weapon fire that swept Hai Ba Trung and adjacent streets for nearly half an hour.

In the air war, meanwhile, U.S. B-52 bombers from Guam attacked the Viet Cong's C Zone near the Cambodian border for the 10th straight day. Their target was a Viet Cong troop concentration area 70 miles northwest of Saigon, but a U.S. spokesman said he had no assessment of the result of the repeated strikes.

Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers flew 49 missions over North Viet Nam, attacking anti-aircraft and radar sites, river traffic, storage areas and approaches to the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

U.S. pilots flew 340 sorties over South Viet Nam Monday, while South Vietnamese fighters flew 193. Their targets were Viet Cong camps, troop concentrations and river traffic.

Ground warfare continued at a low ebb, with the U.S. command reporting only light, sporadic contact with the Viet Cong Monday and no major action.

The terrorist mine in Saigon, a pellet-scattering Claymore, was attached to a bicycle and was set off in an early morning rain at a military bus stop near three U.S. billets. The Viet Cong set off a similar device April 27 at a pickup point for Korean construction workers, killing 10 persons and injuring more than 30.

GRAINS EASIER AT WEATHER REPORTS

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market turned generally easier today as weather reports said freezing temperatures failed to materialize as widely over the Midwest as had been forecast.

Wheat traders said that the market, apparently was influenced by the absence of additional damaging frost in Kansas and Oklahoma. Speculators who had been active buyers Monday quickly cashed profits today.

Wheat slipped well over a cent a bushel in sports. Other grains were off small fractions and soybeans attracted a little improved support after a weak opening.

India Accuses Pakistan And Red China

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Defense minister Y. B. Chavan has charged Pakistan with 14 border violations since March 15 and says Communist China has concentrated troops along its frontier with two Indian-controlled Himalayan states.

Chavan told Parliament Monday the Chinese have sent out patrols but made no mention of border violations by them. The troops are concentrated in Tibet near the border with Bhutan and Sikkim, he said.

Chavan said six of the Pakistani border infractions took place in Kashmir, the Himalayan state which both India and Pakistan claim and over which they fought a three-week war last September.

required to fuse the thermonuclear reaction.

A hydrogen bomb has an atomic device for a trigger. Millions of degrees of heat—provided by the splitting of the atom—are required to fuse the deuterium or tritium elements—and release their awesome power.

The atomic device can, however, go off without unleashing the fusion process.

State Department press officer Marshall Wright said the test was "in the same general range" as the two previous Red Chinese detonations in October 1964 and May 1965. Both of these were equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, or 20 kilotons.

Wright did not say whether the test was of a thermonuclear device.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, asked about the test as he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he doubts it affects the international situation any more than did the first or second detonations.

frustrating war to speak for itself, without Republican prompting.

Outside of Congress, Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, and Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 nominee, have assailed Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Goldwater said Fulbright had been giving "aid and comfort to the enemy" in his criticism of Johnson policies. He called for Nixon to resign as committee chairman.

Nixon said that if the country should follow "the appeasement line of Sen. William Fulbright in Viet Nam we will be in World War III within four to five years."

Monday, Nixon called Fulbright's description of Saigon as "an American brothel" an irresponsible libel against American forces in Saigon and the South Vietnamese. He said he would gladly contribute to a fund to send Fulbright to Saigon so he could tell it to the Marines.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A rebounding stock market weathered some profit taking and held on to the major part of its gains in heavy trading late this afternoon.

Here was the picture toward the close:

Volume for the day was estimated at 9.5 million shares compared with 9.3 million Monday. The high-flying galmor stocks, pounded down unmercifully in the past two weeks of selling, recovered 1 to 5 points.

A wide spectrum of blue chips in most of the important groups moved higher as "bargain hunters" bought stock at relatively cheap prices.

Brokers called it "a technical recovery from an oversold condition."

IBM, Xerox, Eastern Air Lines and Teledyne were up about 5. Zenith, Polaroid and Delta Airlines 4, Admiral, Magnavox, Cincinnati Milling, Douglas Aircraft and Boeing 3 each. Anaconda climbed almost 4. Motorola, Pan American World Airways, Continental Airlines and Hess Oil 2 apiece.

General Motors recovered a full point from its recent low and held it. Ford wiped out a gain and traded unchanged. Chrysler held only a fraction of a rise of about a point.

Top steelmakers maintained a string of fractional advances. Eastman Kodak rose 2, Union Carbide, Du Pont, Pennsylvania Railroad, Merck, Radio Corp., International Harvester and many other market wheelhorses a point or better.

Sperry Rand was leading the list on volume as it clung to a gain of virtually a point.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange recovered in heavy trading.

Corporate bonds were unchanged. U.S. Treasury bonds rose.

SIU STUDENTS WILL PROTEST LOYALTY OATH

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP)—A group of Southern Illinois University students announced Monday a campaign against the state's loyalty oath and against restrictions governing speakers at state schools.

The group said it was organizing after Gov. Otto Kerner suggested during a news conference April 29 that the oath, required of state employees since the 1950s, be repealed.

Petitions to be circulated will include an appeal to the legislature to repeal the Claiborne Act under which state-supported universities can forbid campus appearance by speakers affiliated with subversive organizations, the students said.

Student spokesman for the group, Jack Hammond of Newport News, Va., and John Strawn of Moline, said faculty members are to be named to the committee.

NO PLACE FOR CLUB

NEW YORK (AP) — The tower of the Williamsburg Bridge — 235 feet above the East River — has no place to build a clubhouse. Three young boys learned that the hard way.

The youngsters, Tony Rivers, 12, Edward Galan, 12, and Ismet Muhannet, 11, began lunging lumber to the bridge tower Monday afternoon. A pedestrian saw them and notified police.

All they wanted, they told the authorities, was their own private little skyclub that couldn't be touched by other youngsters.

JHS Bombs Rout In District, 23-4

Jacksonville High school scored almost at will in the first three innings and proceeded to blast Routt 23-4, in a five-inning contest that opened the JHS District Monday afternoon.

Ashland and Pleasant Plains will meet at 4:15 today in the second game of the District, with the winner meeting JHS for the right to advance to the Regional, Wednesday at the same time.

The game was no contest after the winners poured across 11 runs in the bottom of the first, although Routt started off the tilt with three in top of the opening frame, an inning that lasted almost 50 minutes.

Jacksonville whacked out 13 hits and took full advantage of eight Routt errors in the field and seven free passes by two Rocket hurlers.

Routt took a 3-0 lead their first time up when Mike Fitzpatrick blasted a Ken Miller error and Tom Murgatroyd walked. The only other Rocket tally came in the second via a walk to Lloyd Krumloft, an error and McNeely's single.

Chuck Stratman set the Rockets down in order the final two innings.

Mike Tendick, Miller, Rich

Coble and Dave Marshall all stroked hits in the first for JHS, with Miller getting two singles and Coble stroking a triple. Three walks and a like number of Routt errors aided the wild inning.

Eilers Singles In Winning Run For Comets, 2-1

MT. STERLING — Mike Eilers singled home the winning run in the top of the seventh to pull Chandlerville to a 5-4 triumph over Brown County, in the first game of the Brown County baseball District here Monday afternoon.

The host club offset a four-run second by Chandlerville by knotting the game in the bottom of the third. After a scoreless three middle innings, the eventual winners scored in the top of the seventh to settle the issue.

Lindell Garner started the seventh with a single and advanced to second on a ground out by Ken Barrett, scoring on Eilers' single.

Jim Duvendack was two-for-two for the losers, while Delbert Force was two-for-three for the Comets, including a double. Carroll Logue went all the way for the winners, striking out six and walking four.

DRAG EXHIBITION

Dickie Harrell, one of the top match racers in the business, will put on an exhibition tonight at the weekly drags at the White Hall Dragway.

Harrell, who drives a 427-Chevrollet "Funny Car," will put on an exhibition prior to the eliminations which get underway at 8:30.

JHS scored three more in the second, this time on only one hit, Charley Robson's double.

The final nine runs of the contest crossed in the third, with the Crimsons collecting six more safeties. Stan Hayes, Robson, Ed Winger, Tendick and Miller all hit safely in the frame.

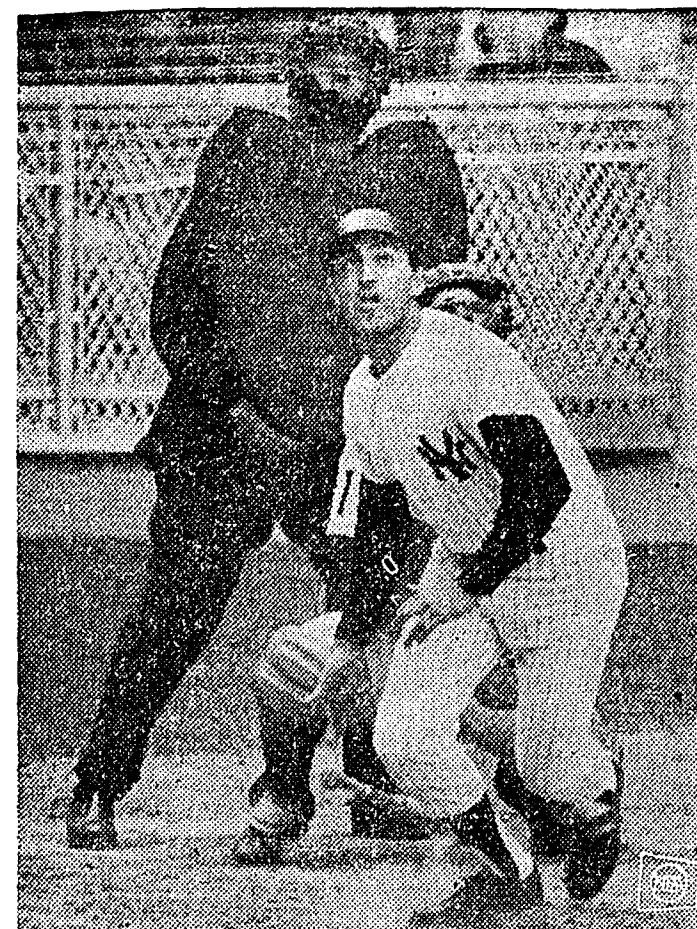

For the day Miller was the leader at the plate with three singles in five trips, while Tendick, Robson and Hayes all collected two hits apiece.

JHS is now 11-5 on the season, while Routt bowed out on a 1-6 record.

Clay Dons Cloak Of Odd Humility

LONDON (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay donned his cloak of humility when he landed here Monday after a delayed flight from New York for his May 21 title fight with Britain's Henry Cooper.

"Cooper has a chance," the champ said quietly. "Any man has, if he has nerve enough to step into the ring with me."

British fight fans were puzzled by the modest, quiet behavior of the Louisville Lip whose trademark long has been a Tarzan beat on the chest and a bellow, "I am the greatest!"

Clay refused to be drawn into any self-display for the British reporters. He even declined to predict the outcome of the fight.

Cooper wasn't at the airport to meet the champ, who was on the passenger list as Muhammad Ali, his Black Muslim name.

Jim Wicks, Cooper's manager,

Clay beat Chivalo on a decision. As if plugging the fight, Clay spoke generously of Cooper's left hook which floored him the last time they met — in London in 1963. Clay won in five rounds.

"It was the hardest punch I have ever taken," he said.

Reporters tried to goad him into a boast or a few lines of poetry concerning the fight.

"The hollering and the poetry are over," he said mildly.

Shortly after arrival, Clay was told that he had been invited to meet British Prime Minister Harold Wilson during the next few days.

IC coach Joe Brooks will open with Tom Gee on the mound. Gee went the distance for the Blueboys against Mac earlier, fanning 11 batters and walking only one man. Mac coach Rich Jones plans to start with junior right hander Bob Gay, 1-3 to date. IC has a 2-9 mark to Mac's 4-11 on the season.

Brooks will have leftie Denny Dunham and right hander Gordon Elmore, both freshmen, ready in the bullpen, while Jones plans to have Dave Berst and Terry Berwanger, right and left handed, respectively.

Looking at batting figures on the two clubs gives Illinois College a decided edge. The Blueboys have four men over the .300 level. Catcher Larry Herick is slugging the ball at a hot .400 pace, while second baseman Bud Lawrence, third baseman Scott Caruthers and shortstop Phil Snowden are all hitting an even .333.

Other Blueboy starters will be Jim Downer at first, Bob Ritzenhouse in left, Tom Rowland in center and Bill Blessman in right.

Gay is the Highlanders' leading slugger, with 13 for 41 for a .317 rate. Following in order are first baseman Bob Alexander, .292, catcher John Nesheim .200 and right fielder Rich Nichols .195. Alexander has driven in ten runs, best for the Highlanders, while center fielder John Jusits has chanced in seven.

The remainder of Highlander lineup will have Fred Lewis at second, Mike Bertolotto at short, Ted Lippert at third and Tom Cochran in left.

New Double Play Duo Sparks Astros

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston's baseball team launched a new double — play combination this season with the addition of speedy Sonny Jackson and it has helped rocket the Astros into third place in the National League.

Joe Morgan, the Astros' second baseman, has taken over the NL batting lead with a .370 average. He also leads in hits with 34.

Jackson, a rookie shortstop, is 10th in batting with .312 and leads in stolen bases with 11, three more than Maury Wills of Los Angeles, the perennial pace-setter.

Jackson, who is on a nine-game hitting streak, collected 11 hits in 25 tries for a .440 pace last week. Morgan had eight hits in 23 times at bat and has hit safely in his last eight games. Houston has won seven of its last eight and climbed into the No. 3 spot with a 15-10 record.

Ken Boyer of the New York Mets, the batting leader with .391 a week ago, slipped to .299. He managed only two hits in 23 at-bats.

Smith Drops 23 Points

Charlie Smith of St. Louis remained in second place despite a 23-point drop to .358. He had only five hits in 18 trips. Jim Pagnallion of Pittsburgh advanced to third on a five-point pickup to .355. Jim Hart of San Francisco is fourth with .349, followed by Curt Flood of St. Louis at .341. The figures include Sunday's games.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore, the former National League MVP, took over the American League batting lead with .406. He had nine hits in 24 times at bat last week.

Minnesota's Tony Oliva, the batting champion the past two years, zoomed into second place. He lifted his average 68 points to .394 by collecting 12 hits in 24 tries.

Brooks Robinson, the other half of the Orioles' one-two punch, remained in the No. 3 position although he fell 35 points to .354 with a 7-for-25 performance. California's Norm Siebern had 10 hits in 16 attempts and boosted his batting mark from .222 to a fourth-place .340.

'Hustling' Talent Sets Up Scandals

(Last of a Series)
By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The underground recruiters of college sports rationalize their work by proclaiming how "humanitarian" it is to get a youngster off the streets of Harlem or Pittsburgh or Los Angeles or Watts area.

"Most of these guys who hang around the kids," says Duquesne University coach Red Manning, "aren't much better than pimps."

Strong words. The contact men usually approach players from economically depressed areas of a city. The players often have low grades. In their zeal, the recruiters show the kids how rules will be broken for an athlete with talent.

The next step, as the recent history of college basketball has proved: an approach by a gambler, a request to shave points from the final score, a scandal.

How do you keep the kids away from the recruiting underground?

"It's a difficult thing to police," says Willard Fisher, whose Schenley High School team in Pittsburgh won the state championship this season. "There are so many outside tournaments after the season, they actually bid for the better players."

Invariably, the tournament teams have sponsors. "They are men who want to be on the inside for awhile," Fisher says. "They want their friends to see how important they are. They outfit the kids with uniforms and the winners usually get trophies or jackets."

At some point when Fisher wasn't watching, a man named Herb (Hambone) Klein befriended some of the Schenley players. He was seen at most of their games, and after the season sponsored the Schenley boys in postseason tournaments.

"He has helped those kids a lot," you hear around Pittsburgh. Klein is also talkative. He boasted to local newsmen that UCLA had shown interest

George Scott, Boston rookie, moved into first place in AL home runs with 10. He slammed five last week. Brooks Robinson remained the runs-batted-in leader, with a total of 23.

Hank Aaron of Atlanta is the National League's home run leader with nine, while San Francisco's Willie Mays has the most RBIs, 21.

The pitching leaders are Juan Marichal of San Francisco, who has won six National League games, and Cleveland's Sam McDowell, a four-game winner in the American. Both are unbeaten.

LA Trades Podres To Tigers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Johnny Podres of the Los Angeles Dodgers was traded to Detroit Monday for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later.

Podres, 33, a left-hander who was the hero of Brooklyn's 1955 World Series triumph over the New York Yankees, has a 136-104 career won-lost record in 13 seasons.

He does not have a decision this year and has pitched only 12 2/3 innings.

His major league lifetime earned run average is 3.68. In 27 games last year, he won seven and lost six with an ERA of 3.43.

Contacted in his hotel room in Philadelphia, Podres said he was not sure about the terms of the trade. "I understand I've been sold," he said.

Podres had no particular thoughts about going to the American League after spending his entire major league career in the National League.

"I just want to go somewhere where I can pitch," he said. "I'm happy to be going with Charlie Dressen. I've been with him before, and he's one of the greatest managers I've ever played for."

Podres played under Dressen in 1953, his rookie year with the Dodgers and Dressen's last as a manager of the team.

Podres had been with the Dodgers 12 years. He was out of action two years, one while in the service and another on the disabled list with a sore arm.

Podres' best season was 1961 with the Dodgers, by then in Los Angeles, when his 18-5 record led the league in percentage, .783.

His biggest moment, however, was in the 1955 World Series. He won two games, including the seventh, as the Dodgers — Brooklyn variety — won their only world championship.

Podres has a 4-1 World Series record.

In Ken Durrett, the star Schenley player (a junior), and had been in contact with the boy through Klein.

"I can't watch them 24 hours a day," Fisher says. "I've seen Klein around and I checked him out and was told he was all right. He's been sponsoring those teams for a long time. How am I supposed to know about his private life?"

If Fisher, and coaches like him, could check the private lives of some of the men who consort with their players, they'd find that many of them are avid gamblers — and not just the $5 variety of better, either.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, after the last gambling scandal in college basketball, had the power to prohibit players of its college members from performing in summer leagues and unsanctioned tournaments. The NCAA found out that many gamblers made initial contact with the players at resort areas where summer leagues were popular.

The problem at the high school level is that it's impossible to legislate uniformly all over the country on such potential trouble spots as post-season tournaments. And so the contact men, the bird dogs and the scouts, flourish more than ever.

It says in the NCAA By-Laws, Article 6, Section 5, Sub-section E:

"An institution may not pay any costs incurred by an athletic talent scout in studying or recruiting prospective student athletes. An institution may not place any such person on a fee or a honorarium basis and thereby claim him as a staff member and entitled to expense money."

Such words are lost on Freddie the Spook and his crowd.

Dr. Jack Ramsey, the coach of St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, has a theory. "Maybe," he says, "the NCAA is too lenient in just handing out probation (for recruiting violations). Maybe the answer is to restrict these schools from competition."

No competition, no money. Nothing would hurt more.

CARDINALS PULL ANOTHER GOODIE

The questionable value of the St. Louis Cardinals' spring trade that sent first baseman Bill White to the Phillies was further emphasized by Sunday's swap of pitcher Ray Sadecki to the Giants for slugger Orlando Cepeda.

Most Cardinal fans screamed when White was traded, and now they can say "I told you so." Recent mutterings from the Redbirds' front office have said a good-hitting first baseman was a must if they were to make any kind of a run at a pennant this year.

This made sense because the Cardinals had banked all on rookie George Kerner coming through with the bat, however, the youngster had shown he couldn't hit anyone who threw left handed and is now back in the minors. But the force of it all is that GM Bob Howsam and other front office brass should have realized they had one of the best first basemen in the business in White to begin with and left well enough alone.

What the two switches amount to now is that the Cards have their first baseman, but a front line pitcher is missing, something no team can afford.

The slugging Cepeda should be an asset to the often weak-hitting Birds, especially for the long ball, if his leg that kept him out of action almost all of last season holds out. The question is, can the team replace Sadecki, who played a big part in hurling the Birds to the pennant and World Series two years ago?

To this corner the latest trade only accentuated the fact that the first swap was a flub, and all the two deals accomplished were to cost the Cardinals their second-best moundman.

From the Giants' standpoint, Cepeda was expendable, because of Willie McCovey, and we personally do not see anything now standing in the way of the West Coast outfit winning it all this season.

Great Off Field, Too

Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' great but fading center fielder, further displayed his greatness over the weekend in his remarks concerning the firing of manager Johnny Keane.

The rumors had been flying that Mantle and Keane had a running feud and their squabbles were one reason the Yanks were in the cellar during the early days of the young season. It would have been easy for Mantle, nearing the end of a career that has been outstanding but crimped somewhat because of repeated injuries, to lay the blame on Keane, but his statements to the press and Keane were just the opposite.

"For the first time in my career, I felt I let my manager down. I didn't mean to, but I did," said Mantle, taking the blame. "I think the whole club did. But speaking for myself, I just think I didn't play as well as I could and I want to express my regrets to Johnny. I'm only sorry that when we start winning, he won't be around."

Concerning the firing of the former St. Louis Cardinals' boss, it seems quite ridiculous to this writer the way the major league teams handle such matters.

Only Friday, general manager Ralph Houk, who replaces Keane as field boss, and other Yankee brass emphatically denied that the club was even considering firing Keane. Then on Saturday, the announcement that Keane was canned. And, of course, this is not infrequent. It seems a rather childish, pointless game these big wheels play.

ABOARD THE USS ENTERPRISE - (NEA) - For as long as men have gone down to the sea in ships, they have come back from it with beards. The modern swab is no different. To the chagrin of the captain and the lament of the ladies back home, hundreds of this carrier's crew have camouflaged their chins with flurries of fur.

Peter Wohld
Lafayette, Ind.

Big beards, lovelocks, curly, straight, black, brown, red, blond . . . the ship looks like a Smith Bros. cough drop package. Young and old, meek and bold, almost everyone has experimented. The estimate is that at least half of the vessel's crew of 5,300 officers and men has tried to cultivate some facial hair. What's more, nearly 1,000 have succeeded.

Marvin Kyniston
Medford, Ore.

Out here they call them "the hairy herds." Indeed, a deck stroll is like walking through the anthropoid house at the Bronx Zoo. Guys with skin shag are swinging from every yardarm.

Rusk Confident Viet Elections Will Be Held

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Monday he is confident there will be elections in South Viet Nam next September in a first step toward constitutional government. Rusk added he does not believe the government's ruling generals will stand in the way of eventual civilian rule. And he expressed belief the country's rulers are not trying to postpone elections.

He said reports that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has declared he will remain in power for at least another year have been misinterpreted to mean that the top man in the governing council of generals is going back on promises to hold elections this year. No Forecast
But Rusk offered no forecast of the timetable for a shift to civilian government in the Southeast Asia war theater.

Rusk testified in the glare of television lights at an explosive renewal of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's internal debate about U.S. policy in Asia. He came armed with a legal brief arguing that there is ample ground within international law for the American stand in the Asian war.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., fired back a demand that the committee hold a public inquiry into the legality of the American position. Morse, a persistent foe of American involvement in the Vietnamese struggle, insisted the United States is "acting outside the law."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, called the premier an irresponsible man who could hamper free elections. Morse called him a tyrant. Defends Ky
Rusk, glancing at a transcript of Ky's press conference - which he acknowledged could be incomplete - said Ky had not declared elections "or a National Assembly would be postponed."

A Big Battle Over Beards On the Bounding Main

One popular cut is the Casanova goatee. Another is the Ulysses Grant thatch. One fellow looks like Errol Flynn with a pot belly. Another resembles a 5-foot-5 Abe Lincoln. A few are obviously compensating for fate; that is, sowing below the ears what nature has already harvested above.

Vincent Hall
Long Beach, Calif.

Some comb, some don't. Wax is popular. So is sweet smell. But the primary pleasure for these mess midshipmen is to sit and scratch, twist, tug, rumple, pick, rub and admire the brush they have manicured during some four months before the mirror.

For all of that, however, it hasn't been smooth sailing, much less shaving, for the plumage planters. To begin with there were the gobs who took advantage of the situation. They didn't want beards, they just weren't standing close enough to their razors in the morning.

The whole thing got out of hand. The ship started to look like a barbershop floor. Everybody had 5 o'clock shadow at noon, and it began to look as if beards would be banished. But the skipper's decision was fair to hair.

His order: "One set of whiskers per cruise."

Adam Vaura
Jacksonville, Fla.

The regulation split the ship into two factions - them that have and them that have not. And this has created animated arguments as to which side is the wiser. Says a Have: "A beard is a wonderful friend and it is also useful. Every morning when I eat, bits of food get lost in the hairs. During the day I can lunch just by picking them out."

Bill Brandenburg
San Diego, Calif.

Says a Have Not: "I grew one but I cut it off. I got sick of waking up feeling like the backside of a bear."

To be sure, the rivalry has grown somewhat embarrassing for the Haves. They are called "mop mouths" and must suffer the tweaks and titters of their hairless mates. Somebody, for example, is forever running after them, saying, "woot, woot!"

And as if that isn't bad enough, even the homefolk seem to be siding with the unlightened enemy.

One seaman sent a picture of his stubble to his fiancée and within a fortnight he got it and his engagement ring back.

Her letter was three words: "Sorry about that."

The bearded fraternity here still talk about that chap. The incident broke him up completely. It was horrible. The next morning he picked up a razor, touched it to his throat . . . and shaved!

Ford Cuts Production Slightly

DETROIT (AP) - Ford Motor Co. slowed its red-hot auto production pace Monday and blamed the move in part on harassment on the auto safety issue.

Ford followed the lead of General Motors in saying that the production cutbacks were to get output in line with dealer inventory. GM had four plants on short work time last week and said Saturday eight other plants will be idled one to three days during the rest of May.

Ford's reduction from a planned 261,000 cars to a new target of 242,000 will be made without any plants going on short time. Instead, Ford said, some planned overtime work at various plants would be eliminated.

Ford said its 242,000 goal, if attained, still would be the biggest May in Ford history. The current mark of 236,839 cars was set last May.

Chrysler Corp., the other member of the automotive Big Three, and American Motors said they had no plans to cut their May production schedules. Ford spokesmen, pressed for an explanation of Ford's cutback, pointed to a weekend interview in which Arjay Miller, Ford president, told the Detroit Free Press:

"There is some downturn (in sales). What caused it is hard to say. It's my personal opinion that the undue attention on the safety of autos has had some effect. The harassment the industry is going through is probably causing some people not to buy cars."

Gemini 9 Astronaut Will Take Long Walk In Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) - Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan is to take man's longest space walk and will shift through the skies with a rocket-powered backpack during next week's Gemini 9 flight. Cernan and the command pilot, Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, also will collaborate on a simulated space rescue and Cernan will conduct scientific and photographic experiments while outside. He will be attached to a lengthy tether which will permit him to move out as far as 140 feet from the spacecraft.

Main Goals
The main goals of the planned 2-hour 25-minute space stroll will be to determine how well man withstands long exposure outside an orbiting ship and how well the back pack operates.

Cernan's walk will open the way to more extensive excursions in which astronauts transfer from one craft to another; assemble space laboratories, telescopes and other objects in space, and to untethered flights by spacemen.

Stafford and Cernan, a Navy lieutenant commander, are to be launched from Cape Kennedy at 11:39 a.m. (EST) May 17 and are to hook up with an Agena satellite four hours later. They are to stay aloft for three days. After the space walk they will practice different types of rendezvous approaches and will shift their orbit by firing the powerful Agena engine.

At sunrise, Stafford will push a button in the cabin to release the AMU and Cernan will float out into space still hooked to the craft and slip into space on a 25-foot umbilical cord that will provide oxygen from the Gemini 9 life support system. The umbilical also will provide communications with Stafford and will feed information on Cernan's heart beat and respiration to ground stations.

Attached to his chest will be a pack containing a 30-minute emergency oxygen supply.

Cernan will mount a movie camera on the outside of the Gemini to record his actions. He then will retrieve a biological specimen experiment and hand it to Stafford. Then he will activate a micrometeorite recording device on the side of the Agena, which is docked to the spacecraft. This experiment hopefully will be recovered in July by the Gemini 10 astronauts.

Cernan will evaluate his ability to maneuver on the end of the umbilical, checking orbital dynamics effects and stiffness. As Day Ends
As a 54-minute daylight period ends, Cernan will move to an open equipment section at the base of Gemini 9. During a 36-minute darkness period he will don the back pack-called an astronaut maneuvering unit (AMU)-and pick up a bag containing an additional 125 feet of tether.

While Cernan is in the equipment bay, Stafford will disconnect from the Agena and back about 80 feet away.

At sunrise, Stafford will push a button in the cabin to release the AMU and Cernan will float out into space still hooked to the original 25-foot umbilical. The Air Force-developed AMU weighs 160 pounds and has 12 small jets that work in series of two to enable the astronaut to move up and down or back and forth. The AMU has a self-contained life support system.

Extra Line
After evaluating his ability to manipulate the AMU, Cernan will hook his original lifeline to the extra 125 feet of tether. The tether is essentially a nylon rope and therefore the ground will have no reading on his physical condition until he returns to the cabin some 40 minutes later. The two astronauts will have radio contact, however.

Cernan will move about 40 feet in front of the spacecraft and stabilize himself there, pretending he is stranded. Stafford will slowly drive up to him so Cernan can touch the spacecraft, simulating a space rescue.

Long Walk
With the lengthened tether, Cernan will shift over to the Agena some 80 feet away. He will maneuver around it to see how easily an astronaut can inspect another satellite. He also will touch the Agena to determine if the bulk of the 26-foot vehicle will move away or whether he will recoil under the touch.

Cernan then will move back to the spacecraft, link up again with the life support umbilical only and discard the remainder of the tether and the back pack in space. He will re-enter the cabin and seal the hatch.

Chinese Set Off 3rd Nuclear Test

TOKYO (AP) - Red China set off a nuclear blast Monday containing "thermonuclear material," Radio Peking said Tuesday. Without saying so, the Chinese seemed to be suggesting they had exploded their first hydrogen bomb.

But the Japanese Meteorological Agency reported no abnormal atmospheric pressure following the blast and a spokesman said: "Therefore, we don't believe that the latest Chinese device was a hydrogen bomb of a megaton class."

In Washington, State Department press officer Marshall Wright said the device was "in the same general range" as the two previous Chinese atomic bomb explosions set off over the past two years.

"Further evaluation must await the collection and analysis of the debris in the atmosphere," Wright said.

No Mention
Wright made no mention of a thermonuclear device, although Washington had said previously the next Chinese blast might be a hydrogen bomb.

A broadcast in English said the device was shot off over western area of China. But a Chinese language domestic broadcast declared the test was made in the air, leaving the implication a plane dropped the bomb.

Said a statement in English broadcast by the New China News Agency: "at 4 p.m. Peking Time on May 9, 1966, China successfully conducted over its western areas a nuclear explosion which contained thermonuclear material."

Test Site
Washington said the test site was remote Sinkiang Province of China's northwest, an area next to the Soviet Union rich in uranium. This is where the first two tests were conducted.

The first device was exploded Oct. 16, 1964, and the second May 14, 1965. The first was believed set off atop a tower while the second may have been dropped from a plane. The first was described by the United States as a primitive device with an explosive force of about 20,000 tons of TNT. The second was slightly more powerful.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Washington he doubted the third blast would affect the international situation any more than did the other two.

Propaganda
But Peking made propaganda of the newest blast, asserting China was conducting "limited nuclear tests and developing nuclear weapons to oppose the nuclear blackmail and threats by U.S. imperialism and its collaborators."

Most military quarters in the West believe Red China will not become a nuclear threat until the 1970s, when it may have rockets, long-range bombers and an adequate stockpile of weapons.

Dr. Edward A. Teller, who helped develop the hydrogen bomb, said recently China may have this potential within 5 to 10 years. Defense Secretary Robert F. Kennedy said "further evaluation."

Wright said "further evaluation."

CARROLLTON TO CHECK SEWER SYSTEM FOR LEAKS
CARROLLTON — Don Houser, engineer from the firm of Casler and Associates of Jacksonville, met with the Carrollton City Council in the City Hall May 3 and discussed with them the possibility of surface water from the downpipes of the various homes in the city entering the sewer system and causing many basements to be filled with water during a rainy season.

The Council members voted to purchase a machine at a possible cost of $200 which will place smoke bombs in the sewer system block by block. By watching where the smoke escapes, it will be possible to determine possible leaks in the sewer systems as well as downspouts that are running into the already overloaded sewer system in the city.

Wayne Martin representing Martin & Hart Milling Co. appeared before the Council requesting the purchase of some land belonging to the city. A plot of land was sold to Martin near the city sewer plant and located south of Cemetery Road.

Plans were made for the annual maintenance inspection of the city water tower. Bids were also opened from local men concerning aluminum siding for the pumping plant house. The bids were tabled and no action taken.

The council voted a raise of $25 a month to each of the street maintenance men and John Sheffield a city policeman was also given a $25 raise.

Perimeter Zoning Passes First Hurdle, Utility Bonds OK'd

Members of the city council Monday night approved first reading of an ordinance adopting zoning for all land outside the city limits for a distance of one and one-half miles.

The controversial mile and one-half zoning ordinance passed by a seven to three tally with the mayor voting in favor.

The council also authorized issuance of $1,500,000 in electric department revenue bonds to pay for a gas-turbine peaking generator being installed at the light plant. Net interest rate was quoted at 4.35 per cent.

Residents Protest

Several residents who live northeast of the city attended the council meeting to protest the mile and one-half zoning provision. City Attorney J. Ed Flynn explained that the city was not passing annexation provisions or adding city taxes to the area involved.
